

The Crystalbrook Station story

We believe that good cooking and good eating starts with good farming. That's why we bought a cattle station.

Located at the very heart of our business and 180km west of Cairns lies Crystalbrook Station. It's so central to everything we do and what we believe in, we named our entire collection after it.

Think: 85,000 acres of beautifully secluded, rolling Australian outback with crystal blue skies, rich red earth and over 5000 head of roaming cattle.

Yes, we farm our own beef. We wanted to supply our restaurants and hotels with some of the finest beef available in Australia.

We wanted to ensure our cattle were raised using superior breeding practices and top-tier standards.

We wanted to bring an authentic dining experience to Cairns and showcase the rich diversity of produce available in the region to Australia and the world.

What is a Marble Score?

A marble score is the way of grading Wagyu. Marbling refers to the fine intramuscular fat within a cut of meat. As the steak is rendered, the fat melts into and further flavours the meat.

Distribution and texture of marbling are key to determining a marble score. The finer the texture and more concentrated and evenly distributed the marbling is, the higher the marble score and the softer and silkier the meat will be.

Australian Wagyu grading scores goes from zero (no marbling) to M9+ indicating extraordinary amounts of marbling.

Japanese Wagyu is graded according to the Japanese Beef Grading System. This system looks at yield from A to C and beef quality from 1 to 5 with an A5 grading the highest grading Wagyu can score.
