Single Malt Whiskey

This is a whisky from a single distillery made using only malted barley, water and yeast.

Single Malt Scotch Whiskies traditionally come from five regions: Lowland, Highland, Speyside, Isley and Campbelltown.

The different regions are famed for specific characteristics like fruitiness, freshness, maltiness and smokiness.

Blended Whiskey

A Blended Scotch Whiskey is made by mixing together Single Malt Whiskies and Single Grain Whiskies.

The advantage of blending is that it ensures the flavour and quality of the whiskey remains the same time after time.

In an 'age stated' Blended Scotch Whiskey, the age statement refers to the youngest whiskey used in the blend.
